 Full-time Medical Doctor | Aspiring Volunteer in Child Welfare

Objective

To contribute meaningfully to the Dubai Foundation for Women and Children by supporting children in need through patience, care, and presence. As a full-time medical doctor with a strong interest in public health, I hope to dedicate time outside my clinical work to support vulnerable children and participate in outreach or awareness activities.

Education

Bachelor of Medicine, Zhejiang University – China

Graduated: 2022

- Completed medical studies in a diverse, multicultural environment.
- Volunteered at a children's hospital during clinical years.

Experience

Resident Doctor – Anesthesia & Critical Care

Saudi German Hospital, Dubai | December 2024 – Present

Volunteer – Children's Hospital

Zhejiang University Affiliated Hospitals | 2017 – 2018

- Supported children during treatment through play, conversation, and presence.
- Developed patience and sensitivity while working in pediatric settings.
- Witnessed firsthand the healing impact of small acts of care.

Key Strengths

- Naturally patient and gentle with children — comfortable offering emotional support, especially in clinical or unfamiliar settings.
- Fluent in Arabic and English; conversational in Chinese (B1 level).
- Comfortable speaking and teaching in public health settings, including basic awareness sessions or informal education.
- Deep interest in public health and women's health, but feel especially drawn toward working with children in a meaningful way.

Why Volunteer at DFWAC

One 10-year-old child I used to teach in my free time once asked me what I would specialize in. He told me he thought I should become a pediatric psychologist — “because you understand me.” That moment stayed with me. I felt deeply connected to that child, and it reminded me of what I believe I can offer: a safe place for children.

I’ve always had a sincere love and endless patience for children. I don’t want to make claims beyond what’s true — but I do know I can be present, I can listen, and I can deliver information in a way children understand. These are the small things that matter most.

While I work full-time as a doctor, I want to use part of my time to serve causes that truly speak to my heart. I’m open to any volunteer opportunity, whether it's being around children, supporting women, or contributing to awareness campaigns. I believe this path will teach me just as much as I hope to give.
